About KBLU - Blue Canyon Nyack

Blue Canyon Nyack Airport is located near Emigrant Gap in the beautiful Sierra Nevadas in Northern California. It is located 30 miles west of scenic Lake Tahoe and 40 miles north east of Sacramento. KBLU sits atop a canyon ridge, with runway 15 sitting just 300 feet beyond interstate 80, making for a scenic, but challenging approach. This thrilling approach makes Blue Canyon Nyack Airport a popular destination for touch-and-gos among private pilots sightseeing over the Sierra Nevadas. In addition, it's also not uncommon to see tents around the airport from pilots that have flown in to camp in the beautiful area.

FAQ

- Why are textures blurry?
 - All object's texture resolution is dependent on it's distance from your aircraft. This saves you a lot of VRAM, but if your camera is far from the aircraft, you may see blurry textures. It is my hope that in the future LR will change this behavior to be based on the camera location rather than the aircraft location.

- Why won't runway lights turn on?
 - Make sure you are on the correct frequency (122.9) on Comm 1, and pressed the Push to Talk button (from X-Plane, not any other addon) 5 times in a very short duration.
 - Make sure you've installed the Living Scenery Technology plugin.

- Why are there still default highways on approach to runway 15???
 - Put simply, there is no good solution. While I could add custom highways, they would require a 2.5GB custom mesh, and they wouldn't blend right with the default highways. I expect that this issue will be resolved with next gen scenery. In the meantime, leaving default highways maintains the most compatibility with various mesh/overlay combos, and minimizes weird looking transitions.
